

THE AVERAGE OFFICE WORKER SPENDS ABOUT 90,000 HOURS AT WORK IN THEIR LIFETIME

“We believe people do their best work when happy, healthy and inspired. We take seriously the responsibility to provide a space that unlocks their potential and facilitates healthy and inspired lifestyles, which is both good for them and the success of their employers.”
- DAMON HEMMERDINGER
co-president of ATCO

Every aspect of Camp North End is designed with happiness, health, and creativity in mind, and that’s good for our tenants’ bottom line.

Historic wooden trusses, massive steel beams, exposed brick, and bright, expansive windows frame the kinds of inspirational workspaces talent want.

As one of the first four developments in North America with Fitwel™ Community certification, our focus on intentional design and community-building lays the groundwork for tenants and their employees to lead their healthiest lives.

There are abundant settings to gather with colleagues (or just contemplate solo), and there’s always programming that sparks fresh ideas and new friendships.

At the heart of it all, the Camp North End ecosystem invites discovery and connection, fueling the kind of environment where people and productivity thrive.
